PUBLIC SAFETY AND HOMELAND SECURITY BUREAU REMINDS MEDIA OUTLETS AND EAS PARTICIPANTS THAT BROADCAST OF EAS TONES AND ATTENTION SIGNAL IS PROHIBITED EXCEPT DURING AUTHORIZED EAS ACTIVATIONS, INCLUDING TESTS

The Public Safety and Homeland Security Bureau reminds all media outlets not to rebroadcast the EAS tones and/or attention signal in news or other stories about the Nationwide EAS Test scheduled for November 9, 2011. Pursuant to section 11.45 of the FCC's rules, "[n]o person may transmit or cause to transmit the EAS codes or Attention Signal, or a recording or simulation thereof, in any circumstance other than in an actual National, State or Local Area emergency or authorized test of the EAS." 47 C.F.R. § 11.45. Any rebroadcast of the EAS tones and attention signal not only would violate FCC Rules, but also would pose a public danger because rebroadcast of the tones could trigger a false alert from EAS equipment that picks up such a rebroadcast.
