In re: Hawaiian Electric Company, Inc.
Request for Renewal and Reinstatement
Call Sign WPJB757
File No. 0004599532

Dear Mr. Fukunaga:

On February 2, 2011, Hawaiian Electric Company, Inc. ("HECO") filed a waiver request¹ to file a late-filed application² for renewal of license of Microwave Industrial/Business Pool (Multiple Address System (MAS)) Station WPJB757, which expired on December 5, 2010. Because HECO filed its application more than thirty days after expiration, HECO requests as part of its application waiver of Section 1.949(a) of the Commission's Rules³ to grant renewal of its late-filed application.⁴ For the reasons stated below, we deny HECO's Waiver Request and dismiss its late-filed Renewal Application.

The license for Station WPJB757 was last renewed on November 2, 2000, and expired on December 5, 2010.⁵ Our records indicate that a renewal reminder notice was sent to HECO on September 13, 2010.⁶ Section 1.949(a) of the Commission's Rules requires licensees to file renewal applications no later than the expiration dates of licenses.⁷ HECO failed to do so, not filing until February 2, 2011, and requesting that Section 1.949(a) of the Commission's Rules be waived to allow acceptance of HECO's late-filed application.⁸

HECO states that that its renewal application was delayed because the licensee contact listed in the Commission's records retired in December 2004.⁹ In addition, HECO explains that the renewal reminder was possibly discarded or lost in HECO's internal mail system.¹⁰ HECO also notes that it went through a large scale reorganization of its operation areas late last year and that many office renovations are currently under way.¹¹ The license allows HECO the capability to monitor pole top electrical line recloser equipment on the western side of Oahu using MAS.¹²

The Commission's policy regarding reinstatement procedures in the Wireless Radio Services is as follows: Renewal applications that are filed up to thirty days after the expiration date of the license will be granted nunc pro tunc if the application is otherwise sufficient under the Commission's Rules, but the licensee may be subject to an enforcement action for untimely filing and unauthorized operation during the time between the expiration of the license and the untimely renewal filing.¹³ Applicants who file renewal applications more than thirty days after the license expiration date may also request renewal of the license nunc pro tunc, but such requests will not be routinely granted, will be subject to stricter review, and also may be accompanied by enforcement action, including more significant fines or forfeitures.¹⁴ In determining whether to reinstate a license, we consider all of the facts and circumstances, including the length of the delay in filing, the reasons for the failure to timely file, the potential consequences to the public if the license should terminate, and the performance record of the licensee.¹⁵ Taking into account all the facts and circumstances of the instant matter, including the specific factors set forth by the Commission, we conclude that HECO's Waiver Request should be denied.¹⁶

Under the Commission's rules, licensees must file renewal applications no later than the expiration date of the license for which renewal is sought.¹⁷ In fact, licenses automatically terminate upon the expiration date, unless a timely application for renewal is filed.¹⁸ Applicants may, however, file an application for renewal and request for waiver of the filing deadline if the renewal application is not filed in a timely manner. A waiver of the Commission's rules may be granted where the applicant demonstrates that (1) the underlying purpose of the rule would not be served or would be in the public interest; or (2) in view of unique or unusual factual circumstances of the instant case, application of the rule would be inequitable, unduly burdensome or contrary to the public interest, or the applicant has no reasonable alternative.¹⁹

We do not believe that HECO has satisfied either waiver prong. An inadvertent failure to renew a license in a timely manner is not so unique and unusual in itself as to warrant a waiver of the Commission's Rules.²⁰ Further, each licensee is solely responsible for knowing the terms of its license and submitting a renewal application to the Commission in a timely manner.²¹ While we note HECO's allegations concerning a renewal reminder notice, a renewal reminder is merely a courtesy, and whether or not it receives the reminder, the licensee is responsible for filing a timely renewal application with the Commission.²² HECO makes no showing that the underlying purpose of the rule would not be served or would be frustrated by application to HECO in the instant case. Nor does HECO show how administrative oversight constitutes unique or unusual factual circumstances.²³

Furthermore, while we note the importance of the station in question to monitoring and controlling the flow of electricity, the nature of those operations, by themselves, does not justify a waiver. If HECO wishes to obtain a new regular authorization for this station, it may file a new, properly coordinated application.²⁴ If it needs to continue operating the facilities in the meantime, it can seek special temporary authority (STA) pursuant to Section 1.931 of the Commission's Rules.²⁵ In view of the foregoing, we find that grant of HECO's requested waiver is not in the public interest.
