THE OFFICE OF COMMUNICATIONS BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES AND THE MEDIA BUREAU ANNOUNCE THE RELEASE OF A REQUEST FOR QUOTATION FOR STUDY EXAMINING THE CRITICAL INFORMATION NEEDS OF THE AMERICAN PUBLIC

BO Docket No. 12-30

Comment Date: February 27, 2012

Today, the Office of Communications Business Opportunities (OCBO) and the Media Bureau (Bureau) issued a Request for Quotation (RFQ) for a study to examine the critical information needs of the American public so that the Commission can more effectively meet its statutory and judicially mandated obligations. A copy of the RFQ will be available at the Federal Business Opportunities website, located at http://www.fedbizopps.gov. A copy of the RFQ, including the Statement of Work, will also be posted at http://www.fcc.gov/office-communications-business-opportunities. ${ }^{1}$ Separately, OCBO and the Bureau also are soliciting suggestions for additional studies, such suggestions to be submitted not later than February 27, 2012.

Section 257 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, mandates that the Commission review and report to Congress on (1) efforts to identify and eliminate regulatory barriers to market entry in the provision and ownership of telecommunications services and information services, or in the provision of parts or services to providers of telecommunications services and information services by entrepreneurs and other small businesses and (2) proposals to eliminate statutory barriers to market entry by those entities, consistent with the public interest, convenience, and necessity. ${ }^{2}$

[^0]Upon this backdrop, OCBO and the Bureau are now commissioning a study to examine:

- how Americans meet their critical information needs;
- how the media ecosystem operates to address critical information needs; and
- what barriers exist in providing content and services to address critical information needs.

In order to assess whether government action is needed to ensure that the information needs of all Americans, including women and minorities, are being addressed, to determine the relationship, if any, between meeting critical information needs, and the available opportunities for all Americans to participate in the communications industries, it is first necessary to examine what prior research has been conducted with regard to how the public acquires critical information, how the media ecosystem operates to provide critical information, and what barriers exist to participation.

The report, to be delivered at the conclusion of the study, will be a literature review, summarizing and discussing the published research, analysis, and information on how Americans meet their critical information needs. It will also examine how the media ecosystem operates to address critical information needs and what barriers exist in providing content and services to address those needs. Finally, the study will provide an analysis of the relevant published materials and will include recommendations for definitions and performance metrics, including an explicit definition for "critical information needs."

Solicitation of Suggestions for Additional Studies. By this Public Notice, OCBO and the Bureau also solicit suggestions for additional studies in the 257 proceeding. We invite parties to submit specific descriptions of proposed studies, including well-defined performance metrics that relate to one or more of the following: (1) how Americans meet their critical information needs; (2) how the media ecosystem operates to address critical information needs; and (3) what barriers exist in providing content and services to address critical information needs. The deadline to file suggestions for studies is February 27, 2012. The Commission will not be awarding any contracts on the basis of any suggestions received. Instead, after evaluating responses to this Public Notice, the Commission may or may not choose to issue additional RFQs.
