WIRELESS TELECOMMUNICATIONS BUREAU SEEKS COMMENT ON ICOM AMERICA INC. REQUEST FOR WAIVER TO PERMIT MANUFACTURE, IMPORTATION, SALE, AND INSTALLATION OF CLASS E DIGITAL SELECTIVE CALLING RADIO

WT Docket No. 17-122

Comment Date: June 8, 2017

Reply Date: June 23, 2017

By this Public Notice, we seek comment on a request for waiver filed by Icom America Inc. (Icom) to permit the manufacture, importation, sale, and installation of its medium frequency/high frequency (MF/HF) Digital Selective Calling (DSC) radio Model IC-M802 (M802).¹ MF/HF radios, which operate in the maritime mobile portions of the 1.6-27.5 MHz band, are used by ship stations to communicate with other ship stations or coast stations for safety, navigation, and weather information. A waiver is required because the M802 does not comply with the relevant technical standard now incorporated by reference in the Commission's rules.

Equipment certification for the M802 was granted in 2002.² At that time, the Commission's rules incorporated technical standard CCIR Recommendation 493³ for DSC equipment.⁴ Over time, the Commission's rules were amended to incorporate subsequent revisions of this standard.⁵ In 2010, the Commission updated its rules to require compliance with ITU-R M.493-13,⁶ and prohibited the manufacture, importation, sale, or installation of non-compliant equipment as of March 25, 2011 (later extended to January 1, 2013⁷).⁸ ITU-R M.493-13 added an annex (Annex 4) that established new requirements for DSC radios.⁹ Icom states that the M802 does not meet the Annex 4 requirements, so the company stopped producing it.¹⁰

The M802 is a Class E DSC radio. Class E equipment is intended to provide minimum facilities for MF and/or HF DSC distress, urgency and safety as well as routine calling and reception, but not to comply fully with the requirements applicable to vessels that are required to carry an MF/HF DSC radio as part of the Global Maritime Distress and Safety System (GMDSS). GMDSS-compliant Class A radios typically cost several times as much as Class E equipment, which is intended for use by vessels that are not subject to the GMDSS requirements. Icom states that typical M802 users are cruising vessels, i.e., smaller ships used for recreation.¹¹

Icom now requests a waiver to permit manufacture, importation, sale, and installation of the M802 until 2020, by which time it expects to have available an MF/HF DSC radio that complies with the current standard. It argues that a waiver is in the public interest because it will enable cruising vessels to obtain communication, safety and weather information from an HF radio during a voyage.¹² It asserts that it is the only manufacturer that produced Class E radio equipment at a price point that general users could afford, and that non-DSC communications alternatives do not provide the same safety benefits.¹³

We seek comment on the waiver request. In particular, we seek comment on the effect on maritime safety of the unavailability of the M802, and on whether there are affordable alternatives that comply with ITU-R M.493-13 or provide equivalent safety benefits.
