NOTICE OF APPARENT LIABILITY FOR FORFEITURE

Adopted: October 26, 2020

Released: October 26, 2020

By the Regional Director, Region Two, Enforcement Bureau:

I. INTRODUCTION

1. Protecting spectrum licensees from harmful interference sits at the core of the Commission’s congressional mandate. For this reason, the Commission’s rules set forth specific technical requirements for spectrum use, whether on a licensed or an unlicensed basis. The Commission takes a dim view of operators in unlicensed bands who modify their devices to operate in neighboring bands that require a license. In such circumstances, enforcement action by the Commission is appropriate.

2. In this case, we find that OSNET Wireless, Corp. (OSNET), apparently violated section 301 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended (Act) and sections 15.1(b) and 15.205 of the Commission’s rules by modifying network equipment to operate in restricted portions of the 2300 MHz band, where a Commission license is required, and then operating that network equipment without such a license. We therefore propose a monetary forfeiture of $20,000 against OSNET for these apparent violations of the Act and the Commission’s rules.

II. BACKGROUND

3. Legal Framework. Section 301 of the Act states that “[n]o person shall use or operate any apparatus for the transmission of energy or communications or signals by radio” within the United States or its territories without a license granted by the Commission.¹ Part 15 of the Commission’s rules provides an exception to this general license requirement and sets forth conditions under which devices (intentional radiators) may operate without an individual license.² Pursuant to section 15.1(b) of the Commission’s rules, however, “operation of an intentional . . . radiator that is not in accordance with the regulations in this part must be licensed. . . .”³ Section 15.205 of the Commission’s rules provides that certain frequency ranges, including 2310 – 2390 MHz are restricted and therefore ineligible for use by intentional radiators under the Commission’s part 15 rules.⁴

4. Factual Background. On December 11, 2019, a wireless carrier licensed to operate in the Wireless Communications Service (WCS) in Puerto Rico, submitted a complaint that a device operating from the roof of a commercial building located at 110 Calle Luis Muñoz Rivera, Cayey, Puerto Rico (Transmitter Site) was causing interference to the carrier's operations in the 2300 MHz WCS band and that it believed that OSNET was the entity operating the device.⁵ The following day, personnel from the Commission's Enforcement Bureau (Bureau) used direction-finding techniques and confirmed that a device was operating on 2307-2327 MHz from the roof of the Transmitter Site. Bureau personnel then traveled to OSNET's corporate offices, where a representative of the company confirmed that it operated two Ubiquiti Rocket M2 devices (together, the Ubiquiti Devices), both of which are intentional radiators. At the request of Bureau personnel, the OSNET representative used an online tool to access the configurations of the Ubiquiti Devices. Bureau personnel then observed that both Ubiquiti Devices were configured to operate between 2307-2327 MHz and that both were configured to operate with the "Licensed" country code (rather than the United States country code). Bureau personnel also observed that one Ubiquiti Device at a distant site operated as an access point, while the other Ubiquiti Device, located at the Transmitter Site, was configured to operate as a station (or client) of the distant Ubiquiti Device access point. An OSNET representative confirmed that OSNET provides wireless broadband Internet service to a customer located at the Transmitter Site.

5. After Bureau personnel explained to OSNET's representative that the Ubiquiti Devices were operating in a restricted band, the company's representative changed the configuration of both devices so that their country codes were properly set to the United States and so that both operated with a center frequency of 2457 MHz with a bandwidth of 20 MHz, which is permitted for unlicensed operations. Bureau personnel then contacted the wireless carrier, which confirmed that it was no longer experiencing interference to its WCS facilities near the Transmitter Site.

III. DISCUSSION

6. We find that OSNET has apparently willfully violated section 301 of the Act and has also apparently violated sections 15.1(b) and 15.205 of the Commission's rules.⁶ Specifically, on December 12, 2019, Bureau personnel observed that OSNET was operating the two Ubiquiti Devices on 2307-2327 MHz, which falls within the restricted band identified in section 15.205 of the Commission's rules.⁷ As such, OSNET did not satisfy the section 15.1(b) condition for unlicensed operation—namely, that devices must be operated in accordance with the applicable provisions of part 15 of the Commission's rules (here, section 15.205).⁸ Accordingly, because OSNET holds no license from the Commission permitting operation within the restricted 2310-2390 MHz band, we find that its operation of the two Ubiquiti Devices apparently violated section 301 of the Act and sections 15.1(b) and 15.205 of the Commission's rules.⁹

7. Section 503(b) of the Act authorizes the Commission to impose a forfeiture against any entity that "willfully or repeatedly fail[s] to comply with any of the provisions of [the Act] or of any rule, regulation, or order issued by the Commission."¹⁰ Here, section 503(b)(2)(D) of the Act authorizes us to assess a forfeiture against OSNET of up to $20,489 for each day of a continuing violation, up to a statutory maximum of $153,669 for a single act or failure to act.¹¹ In exercising our forfeiture authority, we must consider the "nature, circumstances, extent, and gravity of the violation and, with respect to the violator, the degree of culpability, any history of prior offenses, ability to pay, and such other matters as justice may require.”¹² In addition, the Commission has established forfeiture guidelines; they establish base penalties for certain violations and identify criteria that we consider when determining the appropriate penalty in any given case.¹³ Under these guidelines, we may adjust a forfeiture upward for violations that are egregious, intentional, or repeated, or that cause substantial harm or generate substantial economic gain for the violator.¹⁴

8. Pursuant to the Commission’s Forfeiture Policy Statement and section 1.80 of the Commission’s rules, the base forfeiture amount for operation without an instrument of authorization is $10,000.¹⁵ On December 12, 2019, OSNET apparently operated the two Ubiquiti Devices within the 2310-2390 MHz restricted band set forth in section 15.205 of the Commission’s rules without a license, which is required when operating outside of the parameters set forth in part 15 of the Commission’s rules.¹⁶ Accordingly, we find that OSNET’s conduct resulted in two separate apparent violations of section 301 of the Act and sections 15.1(b) and 15.205 of the Commission’s rules, yielding an aggregate base forfeiture of $20,000.¹⁷ Taking the statutory factors and applicable precedents into account, we conclude that neither an upward nor a downward adjustment is appropriate here.¹⁸ We therefore propose an aggregate forfeiture of $20,000 for OSNET’s apparent violations of section 301 of the Act and sections 15.1(b) and 15.205 of the Commission’s rules.

IV. CONCLUSION

9. We have determined that OSNET apparently willfully violated section 301 of the Act and sections 15.1(b) and 15.205 of the Commission’s rules.¹⁹ As such, OSNET is apparently liable for a forfeiture of $20,000.²⁰
