FORFEITURE ORDER

Adopted: February 26, 2020

Released: February 26, 2020

By the Acting Field Director, Enforcement Bureau:

I. INTRODUCTION

1. The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) uses terminal doppler weather radar stations to detect wind shear and other dangerous weather conditions near airports. Interference to these radar stations is unacceptable and, in certain circumstances, could be potentially life threatening. The Enforcement Bureau (Bureau) previously found that Broadband Telecommunications Network, Corp., d/b/a Integra Wireless (Integra),¹ apparently operated two Unlicensed National Information Infrastructure (U-NII) devices in an unauthorized manner, in a manner inconsistent with the Commission’s rules, and in a manner that caused interference to an FAA terminal doppler weather radar station in San Juan, Puerto Rico. The Bureau proposed a $25,000 fine for those apparent statutory and regulatory violations. Integra does not dispute the Bureau’s findings regarding its operations, but instead requests the cancellation or reduction of the proposed fine due to its claimed inability to pay it. After reviewing Integra’s financial condition, we find that reducing the forfeiture to $4,051 is appropriate in this matter.

II. BACKGROUND

2. On August 22, 2019, the Bureau issued a *Notice of Apparent Liability for Forfeiture and Order (Notice)*² against Integra proposing a $25,000 forfeiture for apparent violations of section 301 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended (Act),³ and sections 15.1(b) and 15.407(h)(2) of the Commission’s rules.⁴ Section 301 of the Act states that “[n]o person shall use or operate any apparatus for the transmission of energy or communications or signals by radio” within the United States or its territories without a license granted by the Commission.⁵ Part 15 of the Commission’s rules provides an exception to this general section 301 license requirement and sets forth conditions under which such devices (intentional radiators) may operate without an individual license.⁶ Pursuant to section 15.1(b) of the Commission's rules, however, "operation of an intentional . . . radiator that is not in accordance with the regulations in this part must be licensed. . . ."⁷ In order to avoid interference to the FAA's terminal doppler weather radar installations, the Commission requires, pursuant to section 15.407(h)(2) of its rules, that U-NII devices operating in the 5.25 – 5.35 GHz (U-NII-2A) and 5.47 – 5.725 GHz (U-NII-2C) bands have Dynamic Frequency Selection radar detection functionality, which allows them to detect the presence of radar systems and automatically avoid operating on the same channel as those nearby radar systems.⁸ In the Notice, the Bureau stated that its agent observed that Integra had configured its two U-NII devices in a manner that disabled Dynamic Frequency Selection.

3. On September 19, 2019, Integra filed a response to the Notice.⁹ In the Response, Integra does not contest the Bureau's allegations that it operated two U-NII devices with Dynamic Frequency Selection disabled.¹⁰ Instead, Integra seeks cancellation or reduction of the forfeiture proposed in the Notice based on claims that it did not understand the Commission's rules, that its violations section 301 of the Act and sections 15.1(b) and 15.407(h)(2) of the Commission's rules were not willful, and that it lacks the financial ability to pay the proposed forfeiture.¹¹ On November 19, 2019, the Bureau requested additional information from Integra to support its claim that it lacks the financial resources to pay the forfeiture proposed in the Notice.¹² On January 2, 2020, Integra supplemented the Response with the additional information that the Bureau requested.¹³

III. DISCUSSION

4. The Bureau proposed a forfeiture in this case in accordance with section 503(b) of the Act,¹⁴ section 1.80 of the Commission's rules,¹⁵ and the Commission's Forfeiture Policy Statement.¹⁶ When we assess forfeitures, section 503(b)(2)(E) requires that we take into account the "nature, circumstances, extent, and gravity of the violation and, with respect to the violator, the degree of culpability, any history of prior offenses, ability to pay, and such other matters as justice may require.”¹⁷ We have fully considered the Response and the Supplemental Response and find that a reduction of the forfeiture is warranted based on Integra’s inability to pay the $25,000 forfeiture proposed in the Notice.

5. As an initial matter, we are not persuaded by Integra’s arguments that a cancellation or reduction of the forfeiture proposed in the Notice is warranted because of its lack of understanding of the applicable regulations. The Commission has long held that “lack of knowledge regarding, or intent to violate, the Commission’s requirements does not exonerate, excuse or mitigate past violations and is not a defense to forfeiture penalties.”¹⁸ This case presents no distinguishing facts that would warrant departing from precedents.

6. We are similarly unpersuaded by Integra’s argument that its failure to ensure that Dynamic Frequency Select was enabled on the U-NII devices at issue was merely inadvertent and therefore not willful. To be willful, “the violator must consciously commit or omit certain actions and need not be aware that such actions violate” the Act or the Commission’s rules.¹⁹ Here, Integra consciously and deliberately manipulated the U-NII devices at issue in order to find an optimal frequency to use.²⁰ After conducting its tests, Integra failed to ensure that Dynamic Frequency Selection was enabled²¹—despite having received and responded to a written warning from the Bureau several months earlier regarding this same issue.²² Accordingly, Integra’s conduct was willful within the meaning of the Act.

7. We are, however, persuaded by Integra’s argument in the Response, as supported by the Supplemental Response, that the company lacks the ability to pay the full $25,000 forfeiture proposed in the Notice. The Commission has previously determined that, in general, gross income or revenues are the best indicators of an entity’s ability to pay a forfeiture.²³ Based on the financial documentation provided

¹⁹ See 47 U.S.C. § 312(f)(1). The legislative history to section 312(f)(1) of the Act clarifies that this definition of willful applies to both sections 312 and 503(b) of the Act, and the Commission has so interpreted the term in the section 503(b) context. H.R. Rep. No. 97-765, 97th Cong. 2d Sess. 51 (1982) (“This provision [inserted in section 312] defines the terms ‘willful’ . . . for purposes of section 312, and for any other relevant section of the act (e.g., Section 503) As defined[,] . . . ‘willful’ means that the licensee knew that he was doing the act in question, regardless of whether there was an intent to violate the law. The definition[] [is] intended primarily to clarify the language in Sections 312 and 503, and [is] consistent with the Commission’s application of those terms”); see, e.g., S. Cal. Broad. Co., Memorandum Opinion and Order, 6 FCC Rcd 4387, 4388, para. 5 (1991), recons. denied, 7 FCC Rcd 3454 (1992).

in the Response, we find that Integra's average gross income over its past three fiscal years supports a reduction of the forfeiture to $4,051.

8. A party's ability to pay is only one factor in our forfeiture calculation analysis, and is not dispositive.²⁴ Indeed, the Commission has previously rejected inability to pay claims in cases of repeated intentional and malicious acts or otherwise egregious violations.²⁵ We therefore warn Integra that we may impose significantly higher penalties—regardless of its financial circumstances—if the forfeiture imposed here does not serve as a sufficient deterrent or if future violations evidence a pattern of deliberate disregard for the Act or the Commission's rules.

IV. CONCLUSION

9. Based on the record before us, and in light of the applicable statutory factors, we conclude that Integra willfully and repeatedly violated section 301 of the Act and sections 15.1(b) and 15.407(h)(2) of the Commission's rules. We further find, after consideration of the entire record, including Integra's Response and supporting documentation, that a reduction of the forfeiture amount to $4,051 is appropriate based on Integra's ability to pay.
