ENFORCEMENT BUREAU REQUESTS INFORMATION ON THE STATUS OF PRIVATE-LED TRACEBACK EFFORTS OF SUSPECTED UNLAWFUL ROBOCALLS

The Pallone-Thune Telephone Robocall Abuse Criminal Enforcement and Deterrence Act (TRACED Act) was signed into law on December 30, 2019.¹ Congress required the Federal Communications Commission, not later than 210 days after that date (i.e., July 27, 2020) and annually thereafter to issue a notice seeking comment on private-led efforts to trace back the source of suspected unlawful robocalls, and not later than one year after that date and annually thereafter to issue a report on the status of such private-led efforts.²

The Enforcement Bureau requests voice service providers and the registered consortium, USTelecom's Industry Traceback Group (Traceback Group), to submit any information necessary for the Commission's annual report on the state of private led efforts to trace back the origin of suspected unlawful robocalls.

The reporting period for this request is from July 27, 2021 to October 31, 2021. Submissions are due by November 15, 2021.

Background. Unlawful prerecorded or artificial voice message calls—robocalls—plague the American public. In many instances, unlawful robocalls include inaccurate or misleading caller identification information, known as spoofed caller ID. The spoofed caller ID makes it more difficult to identify the source of the call. In order to enforce the laws prohibiting illegal robocalls, government and industry work together to trace unlawful spoofed robocalls to their origination—a process known as “traceback.” Congress acknowledged the beneficial collaboration between the Commission and the private sector on traceback issues and, in section 13(d) of the TRACED Act, required the Commission to register a single consortium to conduct private-led traceback efforts. The Commission selected the Traceback Group as the registered consortium on July 27, 2020.³

Section 13(c) of the TRACED Act requires the Commission, within 120 days of enactment of the TRACED Act, and annually thereafter, to seek additional information from voice service providers and the registered consortium about private-led traceback efforts. Section 13(a) of the TRACED Act requires the Commission to publish an annual report on the status of private-led traceback efforts by the registered consortium and participation of voice service providers. Congress mandated that the registered consortium selected to conduct private-led tracebacks and any voice-service provider be given an
