COMMISSIONER DEBORAH TAYLOR TATE
ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT CHILDHOOD OBESITY TASK FORCE

I am elated that so many diverse stakeholders will be participating in this timely and important Task Force. The overwhelming response from family groups, health experts, food and beverage companies, as well as the media and advertising industry, clearly indicates that we all recognize childhood obesity as a societal problem. Government cannot and should not be responsible for solving every societal problem; however, this affects not only our nation's health but our budget as well. I am looking forward to joining these discussions as we seek solutions that educate and inspire Americans to live healthier and more active lifestyles.
