REPORT ON INFORMAL CONSUMER COMPLAINTS REGARDING ACCESS TO COMMUNICATIONS FOR PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES

Washington, D.C. – The Consumer & Governmental Affairs Bureau (CGB) announces information regarding informal consumer complaints received by the Disability Rights Office (DRO) during the third quarter of the calendar year 2009. DRO processes informal complaints in the following five categories: (1) access to telecommunications services and equipment (Section 255) (47 U.S.C. § 255), (2) telecommunications relay services (TRS) (47 U.S.C. § 225), (3) closed captioning (47 C.F.R. § 79.1), (4) accessibility of video programming providing emergency information (47 C.F.R. § 79.2), (5) and hearing aid compatibility (47 U.S.C. § 610).

For the third quarter of 2009 (July 01, 2009 through September 30, 2009), DRO received the following number of informal complaints, by subject matter, implicating the Commission's disability access rules: 20 informal complaints raised Section 255 issues; 65 informal complaints raised TRS issues; 67 informal complaints raised closed captioning issues; 9 informal complaints raised accessibility of video programming providing emergency information issues; and no informal complaints raised hearing aid compatibility issues.

On February 1, 2008, CGB launched a new database tracking system for informal complaints, the Consumer Complaint Management System (CCMS). CCMS utilizes the Form 2000C for all disability access informal complaints regarding the five categories listed above. Consumers can access this complaint form at: <http://www.fcc.gov/cgb/form2000c.html>.

The Commission receives many inquiries and complaints that do not involve violations of the Communications Act, a Commission rule, or a Commission order. The filing of a complaint does not necessarily indicate a statutory or rule violation by the target of the complaint. For more information regarding access to communications for people with disabilities and other related matters, visit the DRO website at: <http://www.fcc.gov/cgb/dro>.
