FCC WILL BEGIN ACCEPTING LAW STUDENT AND JUDICIAL CLERK APPLICATIONS ON AUGUST 1, 2014 FOR FALL 2015 ATTORNEY HONORS PROGRAM

Washington, D.C. - The Federal Communications Commission today announced that it will accept applications from graduating law students and current judicial clerks for its Fall 2015 Attorney Honors Program. The application window opens on August 1, 2014.

Attorneys at the FCC work on cutting-edge legal and policy issues in the communications and technology arenas. They promote the deployment of high-speed broadband communications; protect the rights of consumers; promote access to communications services for all Americans, including Americans with disabilities; review major mergers and acquisitions; and promote public safety and homeland security.

Through the Attorney Honors Program, the FCC recruits law graduates to the agency and the field of communications. The FCC encourages law students in their final year of study and judicial clerks with superior academic credentials and an interest in communications law to apply for the Fall 2015 class. Applications must be received by midnight September 28, 2014; incomplete or late applications will not be considered. All Attorney Honors Program participants will be located at the FCC's headquarters in Washington, DC.

Interested persons should submit a cover letter, resume, official or unofficial law school transcript, writing sample and list of three references via email to Honors.Program@fcc.gov. Additional information about the Honors Program is available at <http://www.fcc.gov/encyclopedia/attorney-honors-program>.
