The Federal Communications Commission (FCC or Commission) and the United States of America respectfully oppose the San Jose Petitioners' motion to transfer these cases, which seek review of the FCC's Declaratory Ruling and Third Report & Order, Accelerating Wireless Broadband Deployment by Removing Barriers to Infrastructure Investment, --- FCC Rcd. ---, FCC 18-133 (rel. Sept. 27, 2018) (September Order).

Under the judicial lottery procedures of 28 U.S.C. § 2112(a), the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation designated this Court as the forum to decide any petitions for review of the September Order. San Jose misreads federal law as requiring transfer to the Ninth Circuit after the Judicial Panel randomly assigned all six qualifying petitions, filed in four different circuits, to this Circuit. San Jose insists that these cases must be transferred to the Ninth Circuit because it contends that the September Order is “the same order” as the FCC's August Order,<sup>1</sup> which has been challenged in the Ninth and Eleventh Circuits. That premise <sup>1</sup> Third Report & Order and Declaratory Ruling, Accelerating Wireline Broadband Deployment by Removing Barriers to Infrastructure Investment, 33 FCC Rcd. 7705 (rel. Aug. 3, 2018) (August Order), pets. for review pending, City of Portland v. FCC, No. 18-72689 (9th Cir. filed Oct. 2, 2018), and Am. Elec. Power Servs. Corp. v. FCC, No. 18-14408 (11th Cir. filed Oct. 18, 2018).

is incorrect: The August Order and the September Order are separate standalone orders that were adopted by separate votes on separate documents at separate times based on differing records (with over 700 additional record submissions for the September Order), and the two orders each address separate and discrete subjects. San Jose also has not shown that transfer is necessary for the convenience of the parties or in the interest of justice. To the contrary, while San Jose and Seattle filed petitions for review in the Ninth Circuit, municipalities located in eleven of twelve regional circuits filed separate petitions in the Fourth, Eighth, and D.C. Circuits, belying any argument that the Ninth Circuit is uniquely situated to hear this case. In short, there is no reason why this Court, which often hears cases involving the Communications Act, should transfer the consolidated petitions. The motion to transfer should be denied.

1. The September Order was released on September 27, 2018, and a summary was published in the Federal Register on October 15, 2018. See 83 Fed. Reg. 51867. Any party aggrieved by an FCC order may file a petition for review in the federal courts of appeals. 28 U.S.C. §§ 2342(1), 2344; 47 U.S.C. § 402(a). Separate petitions for review of the September

Order have been filed in the First, Second, Fourth, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, and D.C. Circuits. See Addendum A (listing petitions).

Under 28 U.S.C. § 2112(a), when petitions for review of an FCC order are filed in multiple circuits and date-stamped copies are served on the agency within ten days after issuance of the order, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation conducts a judicial lottery to designate one court of appeals, from among those receiving qualifying petitions, in which the record is to be filed. 28 U.S.C. § 2112(a)(1)–(3). All petitions for review challenging that order must then be transferred to the court in which the record is filed. Id. § 2112(a)(5).

Petitions qualifying for the judicial lottery were filed in the First, Second, Ninth, and Tenth Circuits, and the Judicial Panel randomly selected this Circuit as the court in which the record is to be filed. See Consolidation Order, In re FCC, MCP No. 155 (J.P.M.L. Nov. 2, 2018). Because the Tenth Circuit has been designated as the court in which the record is to be filed, “[a]ll courts in which proceedings are instituted with respect to the same order”—here, the September Order—“shall transfer those proceedings to” this Court, and this Court thereafter can transfer the petitions to another circuit only “[f]or the convenience of the parties in the interest of justice.” 28 U.S.C. § 2112(a)(5).

Given the Judicial Panel's designation of this Court to review all challenges to the September Order, the First, Second, and Ninth Circuits transferred the petitions initially filed in those circuits to this Court. Separately, other petitions for review of the September Order (that were filed after or did not qualify for the judicial lottery) have been filed in the Fourth,<sup>2</sup> Eighth,<sup>3</sup> Ninth,<sup>4</sup> and D.C. Circuits.<sup>5</sup> The FCC has filed unopposed motions to transfer the petitions filed in the Fourth and D.C. Circuits to this Court, as required by 28 U.S.C. § 2112(a)(5), and will soon be moving to transfer the petitions recently filed in the Eighth and Ninth Circuits (which were just received this morning). The Fourth Circuit has already granted the FCC's motion and ordered its case transferred to this Circuit.

2. a. San Jose is incorrect that these cases should be transferred to the Ninth Circuit because the September Order “can be treated as the same order” (Mot. 5) as the August Order. Nothing in the orders supports that claim. The two orders are separate, standalone documents. The orders were considered and adopted at separate times—indeed, nearly eight weeks apart—with the Commissioners casting separate (and differing) votes on each order. Separate documents that are adopted at separate times by separate action are presumed not to be the same order. See, e.g., Far East Conference v. Fed. Mar. Comm’n, 337 F.2d 146, 148 n.1 (D.C. Cir. 1964) (maritime orders adopted at different times and directed to different trade routes and commodities “cannot be considered the ‘same order’ within the meaning of” 28 U.S.C. § 2112(a) even if the orders are substantially identical); Midwest Video Corp. v. United States, 362 F.2d 259, 260–61 (8th Cir. 1966) (per curiam).

The August Order and the September Order likewise do not constitute “the same order” because they each address separate and discrete subjects. The August Order addresses federal pole attachment rules under 47 U.S.C. § 224, August Order ¶¶ 13–139, and state and local moratoria on new wireline and wireless infrastructure through explicit or de facto refusals to allow deployment, id. ¶¶ 140–168. The September

Order, by contrast, does not relate to either state or local moratoria or pole attachment rules, nor does it apply to wireline facilities. Rather, it addresses three discrete subjects in the specific context of small wireless facilities: fees and charges assessed by state and local governments, September Order ¶¶ 43–80; aesthetic requirements and similar issues, id. ¶¶ 81–91; and timelines for state and local authorizations, id. ¶¶ 103–147. The fact that the September Order addresses different subjects from the August Order further supports the conclusion that it is not “the same order” under 28 U.S.C. § 2112(a)(5). See Mobil Oil Expl. Co. v. FERC, 814 F.2d 1001, 1003 (5th Cir. 1987) (per curiam) (denying motion to transfer under 28 U.S.C. § 2112 where orders were “issued by the same regulatory body under the same statutory authority” but addressed different subjects); Midwest, 362 F.2d at 260–61 (denying motion to transfer under 28 U.S.C. § 2112 because “[i]t is apparent that the second order presents issues not raised by the first order” and that “jurisdiction to review the first order does not carry with it jurisdiction to review the second order”).

This case thus presents the opposite situation from American Electric Power Services Corp. v. FCC, No. 18-14408 (11th Cir.) (AEP), in which the FCC has moved to transfer a challenge to the August Order that was filed in the Eleventh Circuit to be consolidated with an earlier challenge to the August Order that was filed in the Ninth Circuit.<sup>6</sup> (The Eleventh Circuit has not yet acted on that motion as of this filing.) In that case, the petitions for review in the Ninth and Eleventh Circuits challenged literally “the same order”: Each challenged aspects of a single document adopted at a single time by a single vote of the Commission. Here, by contrast, San Jose’s petition challenges a different order that was adopted at a separate time in a separate vote on a separate standalone document.

b. San Jose insists that these two separate orders must be treated as “the same order” because they “are associated with the same dockets [and] arise out of the same administrative record” (Mot. 5). But San Jose then concedes in a footnote (Mot. 5 n.2) that the administrative records are not in fact the same, because the record before the Commission when it adopted the August Order necessarily closed upon that order’s adoption in early August, whereas the record underlying the September Order did <sup>6</sup> The challenges to the August Order were not filed within the ten-day window for a judicial lottery, so challenges to the August Order must be transferred to the circuit in which the first petition for review was filed. See 28 U.S.C. § 2112(a)(1), (5).

not close until late September. See Bar MK Ranches v. Yuetter, 994 F.2d 735, 739 (10th Cir. 1993) (judicial review of an agency decision is “based on the full administrative record that was before [the agency] at the time of the decision”).

Contrary to San Jose’s representation that the two orders “arise out of the same administrative record” (Mot. 5), in the nearly eight weeks between the adoption of the August Order and the adoption of the September Order, interested parties made more than 700 additional submissions to the FCC. See Addendum B (list of additional record submissions). And, indeed, the September Order discusses and relies on numerous letters and other submissions that were submitted to the agency after the release of the August Order, and thus are not part of the record that will be filed with the court reviewing the August Order. See, e.g., September Order nn.246–247, 253, 296.

Nor do these two separate orders become “the same order” simply because they were cross-filed in the same agency dockets (Mot. 5)—an omnibus docket for wireline infrastructure issues and an omnibus docket for wireless infrastructure issues. While the two orders were cross-filed in the same two agency dockets, the lead docket for each order is different, reflecting their different subjects.<sup>7</sup> In any event, the FCC routinely issues multiple separate orders under a given agency docket, and those separate orders are often reviewed by separate circuits. Here, for example, an earlier order in the same wireless infrastructure docket as the September Order was adopted in March and is currently under review by the D.C. Circuit. See Second Report & Order, Accelerating Wireless Broadband Deployment by Removing Barriers to Infrastructure Investment, --- FCC Rcd. ---, FCC 18-30 (rel. Mar. 30, 2018) (March Order), pets. for review pending, United Keetowah Band of Cherokee Indians in Okla. v. FCC, Nos. 18-1129 et al. (D.C. Cir. filed May 9, 2018). If San Jose were correct that separate orders associated with the same agency docket must be treated as “the same order,” then it should be seeking transfer to the D.C. Circuit, not the Ninth Circuit—but no party takes that position.

<sup>7</sup> The August Order addresses subjects that are of similar significance to both traditional wireline and wireless service alike, so the lead docket listed on that order is the wireline docket (WC Docket No. 17-84). The September Order focuses principally on obstacles to wireless infrastructure deployment, so the lead docket listed on that order is the wireless docket (WT Docket No. 17-79). This is also why the two orders each contain sections labeled “Third Report and Order”: The August Order is the Third Report and Order in the wireline docket, whereas the September Order is the Third Report and Order in the wireless docket.

San Jose’s claim that the August Order and the September Order are the same order rests (Mot. 4–5) primarily on an unpublished and inapposite D.C. Circuit order concerning challenges to two FCC orders that were adopted on the same day as part of “a single agency undertaking.” Bell Atl. Tel. Cos. v. FCC, 1996 WL 734326, at *1 (D.C. Cir. Nov. 25, 1996). In deciding to treat those orders as “the same order,” the D.C. Circuit addressed the unusual situation where two closely related orders were considered and adopted together based on an identical agency record. That unusual situation is not present here, because the separate orders at issue were considered and adopted separately at separate times and because the record relied on by the September Order contains hundreds of submissions that are not part of the record underlying the August Order.<sup>8</sup>

<sup>8</sup> For similar reasons, San Jose errs (Mot. 5) in citing American Civil Liberties Union v. FCC, 486 F.2d 411 (D.C. Cir. 1973) (ACLU). In that case, the court found that challenges to several orders that “represent the staggered implementation of a single, multi-faceted agency undertaking” in a “prolonged and complex proceeding” should be consolidated because separate review would “result[] in the action of the agency being subjected to fragmentary review by different courts.” Id. at 414. There is no prospect of “fragmentary review” here, because the two orders address different subjects, nor can the two separate wireless and wireline dockets be characterized as part of a single “prolonged and complex proceeding.”

3. San Jose also briefly argues (Mot. 6–8) for a discretionary transfer “for the convenience of the parties in the interests of justice” under the second sentence of 28 U.S.C. § 2112(a)(5), but it has not shown any compelling reason for transfer here. Notably, the array of petitioners challenging the September Order do not even take a uniform view that the Judicial Panel’s selection of this Court is inconvenient for the parties; indeed, several petitioners oppose transfer.

“The only significant convenience factor which affects petitioners seeking review of rulemaking on an agency record is the convenience of counsel who will brief and argue the petitions,” because “[r]eview is confined to the agency record” and the parties themselves need not appear in court. United Steelworkers of Am. v. Marshall, 592 F.2d 693, 697 (3d Cir. 1979). While the San Jose Petitioners are located in the Ninth Circuit, their counsel is based in the District of Columbia. Even more notably, while the Seattle Petitioners are located in the Ninth Circuit, their lead counsel is based in Denver. And the same Denver-based counsel is also lead counsel for a group of intervenors that includes the Colorado Communications and Utility Alliance, an association of 57 local government entities throughout Colorado.<sup>9</sup> To the extent San Jose contends that the Ninth Circuit would be more convenient simply because some petitioners are located in that circuit, granting its request would needlessly inconvenience the parties and their counsel who are located in this Circuit.

Other parties and their counsel are located throughout the country, including other petitioners who sought review in this Court or other circuits. San Jose does not contend that transfer to the Ninth Circuit would appreciably advance the convenience of these other parties, and it may even inconvenience them; indeed, several of these petitioners oppose transfer to the Ninth Circuit. And though San Jose contends that “states and their subdivisions’ interests are far more affected by this Order than are the interests of other petitioners” (Mot. 8), courts have “made clear that ‘it is inappropriate to compare the relative aggrievement’” of parties challenging the order when considering a transfer motion. Oil, Chem. & Atomic Workers Local Union No. 6-418 v. NLRB, 694 F.2d 1289, 1300

<sup>9</sup> See City of Bakersfield et al. Motion for Leave to Intervene at 2 n.1, City of Seattle v. FCC, No. 18-9571 (10th Cir. filed Nov. 23, 2018) (describing the Colorado Communications and Utility Alliance and its members).

(D.C. Cir. 1982) (quoting Liquor Salesmen’s Union Local 2 v. NLRB, 664 F.2d 1200, 1206 (D.C. Cir. 1981)). San Jose’s preference to challenge the September Order in the Ninth Circuit does not override the operation of the judicial lottery mechanism or deprive other aggrieved parties of their right to seek review in another forum.

None of the issues addressed in the September Order are in any way specific to the Ninth Circuit. The September Order established nationwide rules governing the deployment of small wireless facilities across the country. While San Jose and Seattle filed their petitions for review in the Ninth Circuit, other municipalities filed similar petitions in the Fourth, Eighth, and D.C. Circuits—including a joint petition in the D.C. Circuit filed by municipalities located in eleven of the twelve regional circuits. See City of Austin v. FCC, No. 18-1326 (D.C. Cir. filed Dec. 11, 2018) (filed on behalf of municipalities in the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Eleventh, and D.C. Circuits).

Nor is there any merit to San Jose’s claim (Mot. 6-7) that the interest of justice requires that the two orders be heard by the same court to ensure consistent outcomes. Although both orders involve, among other issues, the Commission’s interpretation of the “effective prohibition” language in Sections 253 and 332(c)(7) of the Communications Act, they apply that interpretation in wholly distinct contexts. Cf. Mobil Oil, 814 F.2d at 1003 (holding that “[t]hese similarities are not such * * * as to advise or compel a transfer” where two orders used the same statutory authority to address different issues). And while the September Order contains a handful of citations to the August Order, it does not rely on the August Order for any of its legal conclusions. Most of these citations appear in string cites as but one of several authorities for a well-established legal proposition; some simply describe actions that the Commission has taken in the past to provide historical background; and yet others distinguish matters addressed in the August Order.

That the September Order does not rely on the August Order is underscored by footnotes 79 and 103 of the September Order, in which the Commission acknowledged that several parties have petitioned for agency reconsideration of the August Order and explained that the determinations in the September Order did not require the Commission to resolve the petitions for reconsideration (which remain pending). The Commission thus made clear that the September Order stands on its own, and will continue to stand even if the petitions for reconsideration lead it to modify or rescind the August Order. And just as the September Order would stand if the Commission were to reconsider or rescind the August Order, so too the September Order would stand even if a court were to vacate the August Order. There is thus no reason to expect the Ninth Circuit's disposition of challenges to the August Order to require any particular outcome on review of the September Order—or vice versa, should this Court decide the challenges to the September Order before the Ninth Circuit acts<sup>10</sup>—and thus no inconsistency in allowing the two different orders to be reviewed by two different courts.

Finally, San Jose suggests (Mot. 7) that this case should be in the Ninth Circuit because it wishes to rely on a prior Ninth Circuit case addressing 47 U.S.C. §§ 253 and 332(c)(7). But it neglects to mention that this Court has also issued a series of decisions interpreting those same statutory provisions. See, e.g., T-Mobile Cent., LLC v. Unified Gov't of Wyandotte Cnty., 546 F.3d 1299 (10th Cir. 2008); Qwest Corp. v. City of Santa Fe, 380 F.3d 1258 (10th Cir. 2004); RT Commc'ns, Inc. v. FCC, <sup>10</sup> The Commission has moved to hold the Ninth Circuit's review of the August Order in abeyance until the agency rules on the petitions for reconsideration of that order. If the Ninth Circuit grants that motion, that would only further diminish any argument for transfer.

201 F.3d 1264 (10th Cir. 2000). There is thus no reason to think the Ninth Circuit has any greater facility with those statutory provisions than this Court—assuming that were even a relevant consideration. Cf. Am. Pub. Gas Ass’n v. Fed. Power Comm’n, 555 F.2d 852, 857–58 & n.3 (D.C. Cir. 1976) (per curiam) (rejecting similar argument because “[i]mplicit in the argument is a concept of specialized circuits and panels for certain types of cases, a suggestion we have previously rejected”). It would hardly be in the interests of justice to saddle the Ninth Circuit with a sprawling and potentially unmanageable case involving separate Commission decisions relating to pole attachments, infrastructure deployment moratoria, state and local fees, aesthetic requirements, and timelines for state and local authorizations.

<sup>11</sup> The Court has also asked the FCC to “address whether transfer is permissible before the agency record is filed.” 11/30/18 Order at 4. In the FCC’s view, once the Judicial Panel has issued a consolidation order designating the court in which the record is to be filed, there is no good reason to postpone the disposition of any transfer motions until the record is officially filed.
