TOMORROW: FCC & NSF WORKSHOP ON ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE FOR COMMUNICATIONS NETWORKS & CONSUMERS

Events Starts at 9am at FCC Headquarters & Streamed at FCC.gov/live

WASHINGTON, July 12, 2023—The Federal Communications Commission and the U.S. National Science Foundation will co-host a half-day workshop tomorrow starting at 9 a.m. ET entitled “The Opportunities and Challenges of Artificial Intelligence for Communications Networks and Consumers.” The workshop will bring together a diverse array of stakeholders—network operators and vendors; leading academics; federal agencies; and public-interest representatives—to discuss the opportunities that artificial intelligence (AI) presents for spectrum management and network resiliency, and the challenges AI brings to vital consumer issues like robocalls/robotexts, accessibility, and digital discrimination.

The workshop will begin with opening remarks by Chairwoman Jessica Rosenworcel and NSF Director Dr. Sethuraman Panchanathan. Dr. Margaret Martonosi, Assistant Director for Computer and Information Science and Engineering (CISE) at NSF, will provide the keynote speech, followed by two panels: (1) “AI’s Dramatic Impact on Communications Networks and Technologies”; and (2) “AI as a Tool and Challenge for Consumer Empowerment”. FCC Commissioners Starks and Simington will also provide remarks. For more information, visit the event webpage: <https://www.fcc.gov/fcc-nsf-ai-workshop>.

This event is free and open to the public. Members of the media are welcome to attend.
