FCC Commissioner Olivia Trusty Announces Staff Changes

WASHINGTON, August 11, 2025, FCC Commissioner Olivia Trusty today announced two staff additions, one permanent hire, and one departure.

Marcus Maher is joining the Office of Commissioner Trusty as Senior Legal Advisor, where he will lead on wireline, enforcement, media, and consumer issues. He joins the office from the Office of General Counsel's Administrative Law Division, where he served as Assistant General Counsel focused on an array of legal issues, including infrastructure deployment, universal service, and the Delete, Delete, Delete proceeding. Before that, he served in various capacities in the Wireline Competition Bureau Front Office, the Pricing Policy Division, and the Competition Policy Division. He began his legal career in private practice at Wiley Rein. Marcus received his Juris Doctorate from Harvard Law School and his undergraduate degree from the University of Iowa.

Fatimah Brown is joining as Staff Assistant. She most recently served as administrative assistant in the Space Bureau. Fatimah holds a bachelor's degree from Bowie State University.

William Holloway has agreed to serve in a permanent role as Legal Advisor, and will continue to lead on wireless, space, international, engineering and technology, and public safety issues.

Commissioner Trusty also thanked Jessica Kinsey for her service.

"I want to extend my sincere thanks to Jessica Kinsey for stepping in as Acting Legal Advisor on wireline, enforcement, media, and consumer issues during a critical period of my transition into the agency. She brought expertise, professionalism, and an unwavering work ethic to the role, and I've been grateful for her service to the Commission and to my office. As Jessica moves on to her next chapter, I wish her the very best and thank her for her contributions."
