I. INTRODUCTION

1. Under the Federal Communications Commission’s (FCC or Commission) antecedent rules, an Educational Broadband Service (EBS) licensee that leased its spectrum had to reserve a minimum of 5% of its spectrum capacity and provide 20 hours minimum of educational use per channel per week;¹ a licensee was also required to establish a local program committee (Local Program Committee) in each community where it did not have a local presence.² Today, the Commission affirms that it will hold EBS licensees accountable for fulfilling these public interest obligations that were an integral part of their authorizations. In this Notice of Apparent Liability for Forfeiture, we propose a forfeiture penalty of $1,987,500 against Rockne Educational Television, Inc. (Rockne Educational TV) and $1,987,500 against Rockne’s affiliate, The Learning Paradigm, Inc. (TLP) for their apparently willful violations of the Commission’s EBS rules.

² 47 CFR § 27.1201(a)(4) (2019).

2. While the Commission's rules permitted EBS licensees to rely on the provision of broadband or video service in fulfilling the 20-hour requirement,³ based on our investigation,⁴ we find that Rockne Educational TV and TLP (collectively Rockne or the Companies), apparently are unable to demonstrate that the broadband service they offered to educational institutions ultimately met the Commission's threshold requirement to provide 20 hours per channel per week of educational use. Additionally, Rockne apparently failed to comply with the Commission's long-standing rule requiring the maintenance of a Local Program Committee in each of the non-local communities it serves. In short, Rockne appears to have taken on EBS licenses and enjoyed the flexibility afforded by the Commission to lease out most of the licensed spectrum for non-educational purposes—but did not act with the same diligence concerning its educational obligations. Instead, Rockne reaped financial benefits from the leasing of its EBS licenses while failing to meet its requirements under the Commission's rules for holding these licenses.⁵

II. BACKGROUND

3. In 1963, the Commission established the Instructional Television Fixed Service (ITFS), the precursor to EBS, to enhance the educational experiences and opportunities for millions of America's students.⁶ In creating the ITFS, the Commission envisioned the 2500-2690 MHz band would be used for the transmission of "visual and accompanying aural instructional material to accredited public and private schools, colleges and universities for the formal education of students."⁷ In 2004, the Commission reorganized the ITFS as the EBS and updated the rules to allow for greater technical flexibility in the use of this spectrum—while retaining specific educational obligations.⁸ The primary purpose of the service remained to "further the educational mission of accredited public and private schools, colleges and universities providing a formal educational and cultural development to enrolled students" through video, data, or voice transmissions.⁹

³ See, e.g., 47 CFR § 27.1201(a)(3) (2019).

⁵ According to Rockne, as of 2017, the current value of its combined assets was approximately $341,980 and its reported revenue was $118,427. Response to Letter of Inquiry, from Mary N. O'Connor, Counsel for Rockne Educational Television, Inc., to Marlene H. Dortch, Secretary, FCC, at 29-30, 33 (Oct. 4, 2019) (on file in EB-19-00029564) (Rockne Response). The assets are all attributable to revenue collected over the years from Rockne's EBS licenses. Id. at 29-30. Expenses incurred by Rockne are related to management and maintenance of its EBS licenses. Id. Rockne maintains that the revenues generated by the leases for the licensed spectrum are used by Rockne to fund Rockne's expenses and make grants to other charitable or educational organizations. Id.

⁹ 47 CFR § 27.1203(b) (2019).

4. The FCC encumbered EBS licenses with unique eligibility and other regulatory requirements to ensure that this spectrum would be used to achieve those educational purposes. To ensure the continuity of the ITFS's educational purpose, the Commission imposed the existing ITFS requirements upon EBS licensees, including the establishment of a Local Program Committee in each community where the licensee does not have a local presence (the Local Program Committee requirement),¹⁰ and the requirement that a licensee entering into any spectrum lease must reserve a minimum of 5% of its spectrum capacity and provide 20 hours minimum of educational use per channel per week (the 20-hour requirement).¹¹ Upon obtaining their licenses, EBS licensees took on the responsibility to ensure that the EBS educational mission would be faithfully administered and delivered to the appropriate educational institutions and their students.

A. Legal Framework

1. EBS Minimum Educational Use Requirements

5. For over 50 years, from 1963¹² until repeal of the requirement effective April 27, 2020,¹³ the Commission's rules imposed an educational use requirement on all EBS licensees (or their ITFS predecessors). When the Commission established ITFS in the 2500-2690 MHz band,¹⁴ it envisioned that the band would be used for transmission of instructional material to accredited public and private schools, colleges, and universities for the formal education of students.¹⁵ The Commission also permitted ITFS licensees to use the channels to transmit cultural and entertainment material to educational institutions, and to transmit instructional material to non-educational institutions such as hospitals, nursing homes, training centers, clinics, rehabilitation centers, commercial and industrial establishments, and professional groups.¹⁶ ITFS licensees were also allowed to use their systems to perform related services directly concerned with formal or informal instruction and training, and to carry administrative traffic when not being used for educational purposes.¹⁷

6. The Commission expanded the kinds of services that would qualify as "educational use" over the years. For example, in light of the "increasing use of the Internet for educational purposes," the Commission permitted ITFS/EBS licensees of all types to take advantage of changes in technology, including the introduction of broadband.¹⁸ The Commission similarly no longer limited permitted services to "in-classroom instruction."¹⁹ In expanding permitted use, however, the Commission retained its “content restrictions,” and emphasized that the purpose of this spectrum assignment would be to “maintain the traditional educational purposes” of the original ITFS service.²⁰ Thus, the Commission continued to require channels to be used to “further the educational mission of accredited schools offering formal educational courses to enrolled students.”²¹ The Commission repeatedly reaffirmed the applicability of the educational use requirement as a means of “safeguarding the primary educational purpose” of the spectrum.²²

7. In the 2000s, a series of Commission Orders rebranded ITFS to EBS and changed certain technical rules to better reflect the likely use of the band going forward.²³ Significant changes were made to the EBS band plan in 2004, in part because the existing band plan had been designed for broadcast services as opposed to broadband.²⁴ The Commission explicitly declined to relax the educational requirements or eligibility restrictions then in place, however, citing the public interest in the educational purpose of the band.²⁵ In 2006, the Commission made further changes to the band plan transition rules and mechanisms but declined to make changes to any educational requirements.²⁶ The Commission again revisited certain issues regarding the band plan transition in 2008, and made a number of other small changes to the rules, but did not amend the educational use requirements.²⁷

8. Despite these modifications and revisions to this band, the Commission’s rules included a specific mandate for EBS licensees leasing their excess capacity and using digital transmissions to “provide at least 20 hours per licensed channel per week of EBS educational usage.”²⁸ This 20-hour requirement is “appl[ie]d spectrally over the licensee’s whole actual service area.”²⁹ Although the mandate applied “before leasing excess capacity,” i.e., as a prerequisite to any such lease, it extended throughout the lease term as well.³⁰

9. The Commission has long been loath to substitute its judgment for the judgment of educational authorities concerning what content or use is regarded as educational, where such use otherwise complies with Commission requirements.³¹ Instead, the Commission stated that it would rely on the “good-faith efforts” of licensees to ensure compliance with the educational use requirements.³² The Commission cautioned, however, that licensees may bear the burden of proving compliance with the educational use requirements in audits and other situations.³³ In those situations, “licensees must be ready and able to describe and document how they complied with [the educational-use] requirements.”³⁴ The Commission’s rules also recognized that the services required of EBS licensees should be provided “in a manner and in a setting conducive to educational usage.”³⁵

2. EBS Local Program Committee Requirement

10. As part of ensuring that the educational purpose of the ITFS/EBS band was carried out, the Commission limited eligibility for ITFS licenses to entities meeting certain qualifications. The Educational TV Order limited eligibility to “institutional or governmental organization[s] engaged in the formal education of enrolled students or to a nonprofit organization formed for the purpose of providing instructional television material to such institutional or governmental organizations.”³⁶ The Commission declined to expand the categories of entities eligible to obtain licenses to include either “commercial organizations such as private vocational schools, professional associations, lang[ua]ge schools, dancing academies, etc.,” or municipal services such as training police officers or public health workers, in order to ensure adequate spectrum availability to meet educational demands.³⁷ The strong focus on direct education of students was thus a cornerstone of the Commission’s eligibility requirements from the beginning of the ITFS/EBS service.

11. In 1985, the Commission reexamined the eligibility requirements for the band.³⁸ At the time, many commenters asked the Commission to limit eligibility for ITFS licenses to local applicants.³⁹ The Commission recognized that “[l]ocally based educational entities have been convincingly demonstrated by the comment[e]rs to be the best authorities for evaluating their educational needs and the needs of others they propose to serve in their communities, for designing courses to suit those needs, and for scheduling courses during the school year.”⁴⁰ But because the Commission believed that national organizations could “have a significant role to play in the development and delivery of ITFS service,” the Commission did not ban non-local applicants.⁴¹ Instead, recognizing the importance of ensuring adequate educational use of the service, the Commission established special requirements for non-local applicants, including a requirement to provide letters from local accredited educational institutions demonstrating that the applicant's programming would be incorporated into the institution's curriculum⁴² and a requirement to establish a Local Program Committee.⁴³

12. The Commission established the Local Program Committee requirement in the 1985 ITFS Report and Order as part of an effort to adequately support and preserve the educational nature of the ITFS band.⁴⁴ The rule required that “[n]onlocal applicants, in addition to submitting letters from proposed receive sites, must demonstrate the establishment of a local program committee in each community where they apply.”⁴⁵ Each receive site letter was required to include confirmation that a member of the institution's staff would serve on the Local Program Committee and show that the representative would aid in the selection, scheduling, and production of the programming received over the system.⁴⁶ The Commission established this requirement to ensure that, when a licensee was not an accredited local educational institution, the licensee's spectrum nonetheless was used for educational purposes appropriate to the local community.⁴⁷

13. The Local Program Committee requirement remained in effect even while other alterations were made to reflect the changed regulatory circumstances of the band. In 2004, the Commission reorganized the original part 74 rules into part 27, but made no modifications to the rule text.⁴⁸ When the Commission modified several rules relating to EBS educational requirements in 2008, including certain other requirements for non-local licensees, it did not alter the Local Program Committee requirement.⁴⁹ Instead, the Commission modified section 27.1201(a)(3) of the Commission's rules to better accommodate both technological and regulatory developments.⁵⁰ While the expansion of services available through EBS licenses and spectrum has grown to include broadband and data services, EBS licensees remained obligated to use their channels to “further the educational mission of accredited schools offering formal educational courses to enrolled students.”⁵¹ EBS licensees were thus obligated to ensure they were meeting their requirement to deliver the content and educational use that was relevant to the local communities they serve.

Rockne Educational TV with some but not all of the same governing interests.⁵³ The Companies collectively hold 20 EBS licenses.⁵⁴ Rockne Educational TV and TLP have entered into spectrum leasing agreements for all 20 of their collective licenses.⁵⁵ All the spectrum leasing agreements are with Sprint Corporation subsidiaries and affiliates.⁵⁶ Each lease agreement includes a provision that the licensee reserves a minimum channel capacity for educational use.⁵⁷

15. Rockne asserts that “[t]he majority of [its] efforts are dedicated to the efforts to provide access to educational materials to accredited institutions and government organizations.”⁵⁸ While its mission is ostensibly educational in nature, Rockne does not claim to provide educational programming. Rather, Rockne asserts that it provides wireless broadband data service to its educational institution receive sites.⁵⁹ Specifically, Rockne states that it provides each of its educational institution receive sites with hardware, such as portable hotspots and routers, for the schools to gain access to the broadband data service offered over Rockne’s licensed spectrum, at no charge, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.⁶⁰ Rockne also claims that the educational institution receive sites use the broadband data service for the following purposes: (1) research outlets for students, teachers, and administration; (2) access to the school’s databases when off campus; (3) redundant internet services for the school in the event the primary network shuts down; and (4) connectivity for security systems in and around the schools.⁶¹ Rockne states that it allows the educational institutions to determine how to use the hardware and broadband data service to best serve their students’ needs.⁶²

16. Rockne’s lease agreements are silent regarding the 20-hour requirement.⁶³ Rockne states that it provides “educational and instructional television materials to accredited institutions and governmental organizations.⁷⁶⁴ However, Rockne provides no evidence of such materials. Rockne notes that it did not provide broadband service to some receive sites for more than a year.⁶⁵ In addition, Rockne has acknowledged that several receive sites were not “taking advantage of” the Rockne-provided hardware and broadband services.⁶⁶

17. Rockne, by its own admission, also failed to maintain any active Local Program Committees.⁶⁷ Rockne created Local Program Committees for each of its original EBS licenses,⁶⁸ but claims that regulatory changes vacated the legal requirement to maintain Local Program Committees, so that it no longer has any such committees.⁶⁹

III. DISCUSSION

A. Rockne Did Not Demonstrate its Compliance with the Minimum Educational Use Requirement for EBS Licensees

18. Our LOI requested information regarding the status of Rockne’s EBS licenses since 2009.⁷⁰ Nonetheless, the statute of limitations for this action is one year,⁷¹ and accordingly we focus our review on Rockne’s EBS license compliance for the period from December 9, 2019 until April 27, 2020, when the educational use requirements were eliminated.⁷² Rockne’s violations, however, appear to extend back several years prior to this review period. During this period, the Commission’s EBS rules gave licensees the flexibility to enter into a spectrum leasing arrangement to transmit material other than educational programming if the licensee: (1) reserved a minimum of 5% of the capacity of its channels for educational uses consistent with section 27.1203(b) and (c) of the Commission’s rules,⁷³ and (2) provided at least 20 hours per licensed channel per week of EBS educational use.⁷⁴

⁷² Although the educational use requirements of section 27.1214(b)(1) of the Commission’s rules were eliminated effective April 27, 2020, Rockne and the Enforcement Bureau entered into a tolling agreement regarding the Enforcement Bureau’s investigation into Rockne’s EBS practices. See Tolling Agreement Executed between Rockne Educational Television, Inc. and Federal Communications Commission (executed Oct. 26, 2020) (on file in EB-IHD-19-00029564) (Tolling Agreement). 19. Based on our review of the record, the terms of Rockne's lease agreements, and the information provided in this investigation, Rockne failed to provide sufficient documentation and information describing how it complied with and met the 20-hour requirement for leased spectrum.⁷⁵ The record indicates that after Rockne demonstrated that it had met the substantial service requirements for each of its stations in 2011, it waited six years before it ever communicated with the majority of its educational institutions regarding their use.⁷⁶ When Rockne eventually reached out to some of its educational institutions, its letters did not request the information needed to determine whether the sites were meeting the 20-hour requirement.⁷⁷ In June 2019, Rockne again reached out to its educational institutions and asked them to provide an update on their use of equipment Rockne provided to them, but only two institutions appear to have responded to these letters. For those two institutions, the responses failed to demonstrate compliance with the 20-hour requirement because the two entities did not address the amount or length of time they used their equipment for educational purposes—indeed, one institution stated that it only used the units as a backup system, and the other notes that some of the units no longer worked.⁷⁸ With respect to the other 18 institutions, Rockne has been unable to demonstrate whether they actually used their provided equipment, if the equipment was used to further an educational mission, or if the equipment was used for at least 20 hours per channel per week for educational purposes.

20. Moreover, Rockne is unable to provide any evidence that it purchased any equipment or provided any service that actually supported educational use by the receive sites. Through its lease agreements with Sprint and its affiliates, Rockne is entitled to “a certain amount of service credits that can be used to purchase products from Sprint. [Rockne] has used the credits to obtain and deliver equipment to each EBS receive site,” such as portable hotspots and routers.⁷⁹ Rockne also provides access to data services over the Sprint network to the receive sites located in its licensed areas.⁸⁰ But Rockne's distribution of hardware only guarantees that the receive sites have equipment capable of receiving Rockne's data service. It does not guarantee the use of the hardware or service by the educational institutions and does not show that any such use complies with the Commission's 20-hour requirement for EBS licensees that lease out their spectrum.

21. Under Rockne's plan, the access to broadband or data services did not occur unless and until an accredited institution or its enrolled students, faculty or staff took actions to successfully connect to and use the Internet connectivity using the Sprint-provided connection devices (e.g., a portable hotspot or router). Under the Commission's rules, however, it is an educational institution's actual use of data services, not its mere ability to use them, that matters when determining whether an EBS licensee that leases its excess spectrum has satisfied the Commission's 20-hour requirement. Rockne used its Sprint credits to purchase hardware that it then passed on to the educational institutions with insufficient follow-up to either ensure that the equipment was used in furtherance of the site's educational mission or determine whether any educational value was derived from the provided hardware. Rockne's laissez-faire attitude towards complying with the Commission's 20-hour requirement has resulted in apparent failures to meet its obligations as an EBS licensee, including failures to meet the rule's benchmark or, more fundamentally, to address the educational needs of the affected students and faculty.

22. Rockne cannot describe or provide information regarding the state of its operations and educational use at the institutions within its license areas during the period under review, other than the fact that the majority of these institutions apparently received equipment and data access since 2011. With respect to several of its EBS receive sites, Rockne states that it provided services to an educational institution until “some point in 2015,” a phrase that again reflects Rockne’s disconnect from its own receive sites.⁸¹ The Commission relies on the “good faith efforts” of licensees to comply with its educational use requirements.⁸² But licensees bear the burden of proving compliance with the educational use—and “must be ready and able to describe and document how they complied with [the educational-use] requirements.”⁸³ Without evidence or documentation of any use by the institutions in its licensed areas, Rockne was derelict in fulfilling its responsibility to comply with the Commission’s 20-hour requirement. Rockne has failed to demonstrate that the schools and other institutions actually used the Sprint-provided equipment to access the Internet or further their educational missions. This failure further highlights Rockne’s shortcomings in meeting the Commission’s 20-hour requirement at any of the educational institutions located within its 20 EBS license areas.

23. The Commission’s reluctance to substitute its judgment for that of educational authorities concerning what content or use is regarded as educational does not excuse Rockne’s conduct here because Rockne has not pointed us to any educational content in this case nor has Rockne otherwise established that the content or use of the relevant EBS licenses satisfy the Commission’s rules. In fact, Rockne’s response indicates that Rockne has no idea how or whether any of the educational institutions in its licensed areas are using its services. In other words, Rockne can neither describe nor document actual compliance with the educational-use requirement—and Rockne’s failure in this regard appears to confirm its failure to engage in good-faith efforts to ensure compliance with the 20-hour requirement. There may be a case where a question arises about whether particular content does or does not qualify as sufficiently educational in nature, but this does not appear to be one of those cases.

24. The Commission’s rules contemplated that broadband and data services would be used to further the receive site’s educational mission and would be provided to enrolled students, faculty, and staff in a manner and in a setting conducive to educational uses.⁸⁴ Rockne’s mere distribution of hardware to its educational institution receive sites failed to meet this requirement. It was incumbent upon Rockne, as the EBS licensee, to ensure that the hardware was being put towards that 20-hour requirement. Rockne, however, conducted sporadic and minimal follow-up with its receive sites to ensure that the hardware was being put towards any use, let alone an educational one. We find that Rockne has failed to demonstrate that it provided 20 hours per licensed channel, per week of EBS educational use, and was therefore in apparent violation of former section 27.1214(b)(1) of the Commission’s rules.⁸⁵

B. Rockne Failed to Maintain Local Program Committees

25. Beginning 25 years ago, the Commission’s rules required non-local ITFS applicants to establish a Local Program Committee in each community they proposed to serve.⁸⁶ While the Commission created no “detailed regulatory requirements” concerning the composition of the committees, this did not permit them to dissolve.⁸⁷ Instead, the Commission made clear from the beginning that these committees must persist, noting that “[e]ach receive site, however, should have some representation so that its particular programming and scheduling needs will be considered.”⁸⁸ Since its adoption in section 74.932(a)(5) note 3, and until recently as section 27.1201(a)(4), the language of the rule required the appointment of a member of the receive site’s staff who “will serve” on the Local Program Committee and “will aid in the selection, scheduling and production of the programming.”⁸⁹ The Commission relied upon this statement in the future tense, indicating an ongoing and continuing state of affairs, in approving these licenses. Moreover, the rule’s reference to “scheduling” similarly indicates that the Commission intended for the Local Program Committee to provide ongoing assistance throughout the license term.

Furthermore, by Rockne’s own admission, three of its EBS stations violated the 20-hour requirement because they experienced periods of over a year (i.e., from May 2018 until September 2019) of non-use by educational institutions even as Rockne continued to lease out the spectrum. Rockne Response at 18-19 (WND626, WND412, and WND413). Rockne did not take any actions to correct this lack of compliance.

26. Rockne admits that it “does not have any active local programming committees . . .”⁹⁰ and does not offer evidence that Local Program Committees existed during the period under review in this investigation. Rockne’s apparent failure to comply with the Commission’s requirement for Local Program Committees means that the local communities that Rockne was supposed to serve via its 20 licenses lacked the mechanism for local input and feedback envisioned by the Commission’s rules. Indeed, were it the case that Rockne had maintained Local Program Committees, it is possible that the Companies would have also been more careful about their responsibility to confirm that the programming substitute was actually provided to the educational and public institutions, instead of simply being offered without any follow-up.

27. Rockne’s claim that “changes in the regulatory status of the EBS service eliminated the need and the regulatory justifications to maintain local program committees”⁹¹ is meritless. While the Commission has modified the EBS rules throughout the years,⁹² the Commission did not alter or eliminate the requirement for Local Program Committees until recently.⁹³ Although modifications to the EBS rules in 2008 included adjustments to other requirements for non-local licensees, the Local Program Committee requirement remained intact.⁹⁴ The 2008 rule revisions demonstrated that the Commission was aware of the changed circumstances for the ITFS/EBS band since 1985, and nonetheless chose to retain the Local Program Committee requirement. Thus, Rockne’s failure to maintain Local Program Committees constituted an apparent violation of former section 27.1201(a)(4) of the Commission’s rules.⁹⁵ The Local Program Committee requirement cannot be “willed away” by Rockne or any other licensee because of a self-serving belief that the technological changes in the EBS service obviated an explicit requirement in the Commission’s rules. The responsibility for determining the elimination or modification of a Commission rule lies with the Commission, not a licensee.

⁹⁰ Rockne Response at 22-24. WTB’s silence on the LPC issue at the time of grant, however, does not estop the Commission from finding non-compliance in this instance. See SNR Wireless License Co., LLC v. FCC, 868 F.3d 1021, 1037 (D.C. Cir. 2017). As a general matter, licensees are required to comply with all obligations applicable to their service, whether the license references every rule or not.

28. Finally, Rockne's creation of Local Program Committees as part of its original applications did not absolve Rockne from its continuing obligation to maintain and convene such committees. The purpose of the Local Program Committees was to ensure that each educational institution being served would have local representation so that its particular programming and scheduling needs would be considered. The educational content for a school in New York City, for example, may be different than what is useful to a school in Helena, Montana. As technology evolved, the input by members of the local community could have served as a valuable resource to ensure that the educational institution and overall community received services that reflected the needs of the community. At a minimum, Local Program Committees could have informed Rockne of the continued availability and quantity of services provided under the licenses—services which, as noted above, Rockne cannot substantiate were ever provided during the relevant investigation period. Both the plain language of the rule and the policy justifications underlying adoption of the rule compelled Rockne to maintain a connection with its non-local educational institutions throughout the terms of its licenses.

C. Rules in Effect at Time of Violation Govern Conduct in Question

29. Commission precedent holds that the rules in effect at the time of an apparent violation govern the conduct in question, even if the rules are later revised.⁹⁶ The Commission's rules establish agency policy until such time as they are rescinded or amended in a notice-and-comment rulemaking.⁹⁷ The agency undertook a significant restructuring of the EBS band in 2019, including a new band plan, updated performance requirements, and a new geographic area licensing system for future licensees.⁹⁸ Under this new plan, incumbents retained their existing channels and service areas.⁹⁹ Additionally, all previous eligibility requirements, including the various educational use requirements and Local Program Committee obligations, ceased being effective on April 27, 2020.¹⁰⁰ Until the new rules established in the 2019 EBS Order took effect, however, the Commission's previous rules governed the actions of EBS licensees.¹⁰¹

30. The former EBS rules required EBS licensees leasing their excess spectrum to provide “at least 20 hours per licensed channel per week of EBS educational usage” as well as maintain a Local Program Committee in areas where the licensee was considered a non-local applicant.¹⁰² As the Commission's rule changes were forward-looking in nature, a change to the Commission's rules does not relieve Rockne of its original obligations to have complied with the rules in effect before the rule change.¹⁰³

D. Proposed Forfeiture

31. Section 503(b) of the Act authorizes the Commission to impose a forfeiture against any entity that “willfully or repeatedly fail[s] to comply substantially with the terms and conditions of any license, permit, certificate or other instrument or authorization issued by the Commission”¹⁰⁴ as well as against any entity that “willfully or repeatedly fail[s] to comply with any of the provisions of [the Act] or of any rule, regulation, or order issued by the Commission.”¹⁰⁵ Here, section 503(b)(2)(D) of the Act authorizes us to assess a forfeiture against Rockne of up to $20,489 for each violation or each day of a continuing violation, up to a statutory maximum of $153,669 for a single act or failure to act.¹⁰⁶ In exercising the Commission’s forfeiture authority, we must consider the “nature, circumstances, extent, and gravity of the violation and, with respect to the violator, the degree of culpability, any history of prior offenses, ability to pay, and such other matters as justice may require.”¹⁰⁷ In addition, the Commission has established forfeiture guidelines; they establish base penalties for certain violations and identify criteria that we consider when determining the appropriate penalty in any given case.¹⁰⁸ Under these guidelines, we may adjust a forfeiture upward for violations that are egregious, intentional, or repeated, or that cause substantial harm or generate substantial economic gain for the violator.¹⁰⁹

32. In determining a proposed forfeiture amount, the Commission starts with the base forfeiture amount for the apparent violation, as set forth in the Commission’s forfeiture guidelines.¹¹⁰ While section 1.80(b)(9) does not establish a specific base forfeiture amount for a violation of the Commission’s EBS educational use requirement, we find that the base forfeiture amount of $8,000 for a violation of the children’s television commercialization or programming requirements is most analogous to the Commission’s EBS educational use requirement since they govern the amount of children’s programming to be provided within a prescribed time span.¹¹¹ Accordingly, we impose a forfeiture of $8,000 for each week that Rockne Educational TV and TLP each apparently failed to comply with the Commission’s requirement that licensees supply 20 hours of educational use per channel per week. Using December 9, 2019 as the Commission’s starting point until the Commission’s EBS rules sunset, on April 27, 2020, we impose a forfeiture of $8,000 multiplied by the 19 weeks that the violation occurred ($152,000). We then multiply this by each of Rockne Educational TV’s 10 EBS licenses, resulting in a base forfeiture amount of $1,520,000 for the company’s apparent failure to comply with the Commission’s 20-hour requirement. Similarly, using the same formula as outlined above for TLP’s 10 EBS licenses, we calculate a base forfeiture in the amount of $1,520,000 for TLP’s apparent failure to comply with the Commission’s 20-hour requirement.

33. As to the failure to maintain a Local Program Committee, section 1.80(b)(9) does not establish a specific base forfeiture amount for a violation of that requirement. Again, in the absence of a specified base forfeiture, we select a base forfeiture for an analogous violation. We find that the violation is most analogous to a violation of the former main studio rule and will use that amount ($7,000).¹¹² As with the Local Program Committee requirement, the Commission designed the former main studio rule to allow licensees to be responsive to the individual programming needs of their local communities. As Rockne Educational TV and TLP each hold 10 EBS licenses, none of which maintained a Local Program Committee between December 2019 and April 2020, we impose a forfeiture of $7,000 for each license for which Rockne Educational TV or TLP failed to maintain a Local Program Committee, resulting in a base forfeiture amount of $70,000 each for apparent failure to comply with the Commission's Local Program Committee requirement.

34. Based on the facts and record in this case, we have determined that Rockne Educational TV and TLP collectively apparently violated former sections 27.1201(a)(4) and 27.1214(b)(1) of the Commission's rules by: (1) failing to provide at least 20 hours per licensed channel per week of EBS educational use during a 19-week period at each of their 20 EBS licenses; and (2) failing to maintain their Local Program Committee obligations in the service area of their 20 EBS licenses. In total, Rockne Educational TV's apparent violations would incur a cumulative base forfeiture of $1,590,000 and TLP's apparent violations would similarly incur a cumulative base forfeiture of $1,590,000.

35. The Commission may also adjust the total proposed forfeiture by taking into account the nature, circumstances, extent, and gravity of the violation and, with respect to the violator, the degree of culpability, any history of prior offenses, ability to pay, and such other matters as justice may require.¹¹³ We believe that an upward adjustment is warranted in this instance.

36. Although we are assessing the Commission's forfeitures for Rockne Educational TV's and TLP's conduct during a 19-week period, these violations apparently occurred over several years. Moreover, the extent and gravity of the violations are significant. When the Companies applied for and received their EBS licenses, Rockne Educational TV and TLP also accepted the responsibility of ensuring that the Commission's educational goals for EBS would be faithfully met through their licenses. The Companies, however, have failed to demonstrate compliance with their responsibilities in two respects. First, they have been unable to demonstrate that each of their licensed EBS facilities met the Commission's threshold requirement of 20 hours of educational use per channel per week over several years—and indeed the evidence suggests that institutions were not using the provided equipment for their intended purposes. Second, while they purported to serve educational institutions, neither Rockne Educational TV nor TLP proceeded with any guidance or support from a Local Program Committee, a deficiency that deprived these institutions and the communities they serve of an important means of determining how Rockne's licensed spectrum could serve the localities' educational needs. Commission licensees are expected to understand and comply with the requirements and obligations associated with the licenses they are granted. In this instance, compliance with our requirements is important as these requirements go to the fundamental purpose of the EBS licenses. Rockne's apparent violations warrant a

The main studio rule, which was eliminated in 2017, required the licensee of a broadcast station to maintain a main studio in order “to serve the needs and interests of the residents of the station’s community of license.” Amendment of Sections 73.1125 and 73.1130 of the Commission’s Rules, the Main Studio and Program Origination Rules for Radio and Television Broadcast Stations, MM Docket No. 86-406, Memorandum Opinion and Order, 3 FCC Rcd 5024, 5026, para. 23 (1988) (1988 Main Studio Order); see also Elimination of Main Studio Rule, MB Docket No. 17-106, Report and Order, 32 FCC Rcd 8158, 8160-61, paras. 6-7 (2017). substantial penalty as they represent extensive and significant long-term violations of our rules.

37. In short, an upward adjustment is warranted because of the extended period of time over which the violations apparently occurred, the extent and gravity of the apparent violations, as well as the casual nonchalance with which Rockne approached regulatory obligations. Had Rockne been in communication with the educational and governmental institutions and kept some record of how the equipment provided by Rockne Educational TV and TLP were used, perhaps Rockne might have been able to describe and document its compliance with our rules. Instead, Rockne asks the Commission to accept bald claims of compliance. Given the totality of the circumstances here, and consistent with the Forfeiture Policy Statement, we propose an upward adjustment of 25%, for a total forfeiture of $1,987,500 for Rockne Educational TV's apparent rule violations and $1,987,500 for TLP's apparent rule violations, or a sum total of $3,975,000.¹¹⁴

IV. ORDERING CLAUSES

38. Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED that, pursuant to section 503(b) of the Act, and 1.80 of the Commission's rules,¹¹⁵ Rockne Educational Television, Inc., and The Learning Paradigm, Inc. are each hereby NOTIFIED of this APPARENT LIABILITY FOR A FORFEITURE in the amount of one million, nine hundred, eighty seven thousand, five hundred dollars ($1,987,500) each for apparently willfully and repeatedly violating former sections 27.1201(a)(4) and 27.1214(b)(1) of the Commission's rules.¹¹⁶

39. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that, pursuant to section 1.80 of the Commission's rules,¹¹⁷ within thirty (30) calendar days of the release date of this Notice of Apparent Liability for Forfeiture, Rockne Educational TV and TLP SHALL PAY the full amount of their proposed forfeiture or SHALL FILE a written statement seeking reduction or cancellation of the proposed forfeiture consistent with paragraph 41 below.

40. Re: In the Matter of Rockne Educational Television, Inc. and The Learning Paradigm, Inc., Notice of Apparent Liability for Forfeiture, EB-IHD-19-00029564

In this series of enforcement decisions, the Federal Communications Commission proposes novel fines totaling more than $47 million on non-profit organizations for failing to comply with policies the agency eliminated from its rulebooks more than a year ago. These decisions suffer from a number of substantive and procedural infirmities. But most troubling is that the fines imposed here on the North American Catholic Educational Programming Foundation, the Hispanic Information and Telecommunications Network, Northern Arizona University Foundation, and other similar non-profit entities with programs to expand educational internet access lack any appropriate sense of proportion. Moreover, they are an unfortunate commentary on the priorities of this agency. During a pandemic when millions of people are struggling to get the connectivity they need to maintain some semblance of modern life, this is a strange use of agency resources. Instead of taking these unreasonably punitive actions, we should be leading with our humanity and finding ways to connect more people to the broadband services they need in crisis.

I dissent.

STATEMENT OF
COMMISSIONER GEOFFREY STARKS DISSENTING

Re: In the Matter of Rockne Educational Television, Inc. and The Learning Paradigm, Inc., Notice of Apparent Liability for Forfeiture, File No. EB-IHD-19-00029564.

Today the Commission proposes extraordinary penalties against organizations whose mission is to help those most in need. For fifty years, schools and students around the country have received free communications service through the program that has become the Educational Broadband Service (EBS). Nearly 18 months ago, ignoring calls to reform and revitalize the EBS program, the majority at that time made the spectrum on which the program relies generally available for auction and assignment. Today's actions double down on that decision, proposing forfeitures that threaten the financial survival of some of the program's most visible participants. These decisions represent a waste of Commission resources in an unlawful and unfair attack on a program that has helped people around the country.

As an initial matter, the EBS licensees lacked sufficient notice of the legal interpretations underlying the Notices of Apparent Liability (NALs) to be subject to monetary penalties. Basic principles of administrative law establish that "an agency cannot sanction an individual for violating the agency's rules unless the individual had 'fair notice' of those rules."¹ Notice is fair when it allows regulated parties to identify, with "ascertainable certainty," the standards with which the agency expects them to conform.²

The EBS licensees lacked such fair notice of the majority's interpretation of the now-eliminated educational use³ and Local Programming Committee rules.⁴ When it authorized wireless broadband service for the EBS program, the Commission rejected requests from the EBS community to clarify its educational use rules⁵; instead, the agency said it would simply rely on the good faith efforts of licensees to "provide . . . educational usage." Thus, there are no ascertainable standards that EBS licensees could have followed to avoid liability.

Similarly, the Commission did not give fair notice of its current interpretation of the local programming committee rules. The plain language of the rules appears to apply only to the formation of a committee for application purposes, yet the NALs conclude that these committees must remain in place after license grant, even though their oversight of "programming" no longer makes sense in the wireless broadband context. Indeed, the NALs' legal interpretations generally do not make sense when applied to the services at issue.

The proposed forfeiture calculations are also fundamentally flawed. First, the NALs are based on the period from December 9, 2019 through April 27, 2020, the effective date of the Commission's elimination of the rules in question. But the NALs are based on Letters of Inquiry that covered the licensees' conduct only until August 26, 2019. Thus, we appear to have no evidence about the period subject to forfeiture penalty.

³ 47 C.F.R. § 27.1214(b)(2) (2019) (licensees must "provide at least 20 hours per licensed channel per week of EBS educational usage").

⁴ 47 CFR § 27.1201(a)(4) (2019).

Moreover, because there is no base forfeiture for violations of the EBS rules, the NALs refer to the base forfeiture penalties for arguably analogous rules like the children's programming requirements and the main studio rule. But the NALs apply these penalties in a manner that is completely inconsistent with FCC precedent. Typical enforcement actions for violations of these rules propose forfeitures of hundreds of dollars per violation. In this case, however, the majority proposes penalties of $8,000 per week for each license, resulting in proposed forfeitures ranging from nearly $1.6 million to over $14 million against a group of non-profit entities.

These eye-popping forfeitures are not only inconsistent with applicable precedent, but ignore numerous mitigating factors under our statute and rules.⁶ While some of the NALs upwardly adjust the forfeitures, none of the items consider any mitigating factors, including the licensees' respective histories of compliance, the lack of any discernible harm, and the Commission's finding that the rules at issue no longer serve a good policy purpose.

Broadband access has never been more critical, and EBS licensees are on the front lines in our effort to close the digital divide that has become a monstrous COVID-19 divide. The pandemic has forced schools across the country to close, and many students have been engaging in distance learning for months. EBS service allows schools and their students to continue their educational instruction remotely. Targeting these organizations for a legally suspect, unnecessary, and excessive attack undermines their mission to provide an essential service to schools in need of a broadband connection. I dissent.

⁶ In proposing a forfeiture, the Communications Act requires the Commission to consider "the nature, circumstances, extent, and gravity of the violation and, with respect to the violator, the degree of culpability, any history of prior offenses, ability to pay, and such other matters as justice may require. 47 U.S.C. 503(b)(2)(E). See also 47 CFR 1.80(b)(9) ("In determining the amount of the forfeiture penalty, the Commission or its designee will take into account the nature, circumstances, extent and gravity of the violations and, with respect to the violator, the degree of culpability, any history of prior offenses, ability to pay, and such other matters as justice may require.").
